How did the Fund perform during the reporting period?

Bond markets ended 2023 on a high note as investors' expectations for meaningful rate cuts in 2024 sent rates lower, fueling strong positive returns. Surprisingly strong economic data to begin 2024 tempered those expectations and sent rates back to near cycle highs. Interest rates rose, with the front end of the yield curve re-steepening. The Fund's positive total returns were largely driven by its income generation, which was also additive to performance relative to the ICE BofA U.S. Corporate and Government, 1-3 Years Index, the Fund's benchmark. Offsetting the Fund's income advantage in the first half of the year was a modest long duration position and overweight to the 3-5 year maturities relative to the Index resulting in a slight drag to performance. As interest rates rose on the better-than-expected economic data, corporate credit spreads continued to tighten, providing positive relative performance from the Fund's overweight position to corporate bonds. Finally, sector allocation was additive to performance as the Fund maintains an overweight to financials, which outperformed their industrial and utility sector peers. We continue to maintain a modest non-benchmark allocation to Agency MBS, which continued to underperform during the first half of the year providing an additional headwind to relative performance.
